

Competition: 'If I were head of the WWF'.

Lots of animals are threatened with extinction. Yet we could all do something for these animals and for their natural habitats. The head of the WWF is always on the lookout for new ideas and would like to hear your suggestions.

- 1 Draw a picture of an animal that you would like to protect, in its natural habitat.
- 2 Write down a few things that you would do for animals and nature, if you were head of the WWF.

.....

.....

.....

.....

Put your competition entry in the blue letter box marked 'Competition', which is next to the exit of the exhibition.

You can also submit your entry by post to:

WWF Switzerland, 'If I were head of the WWF', Postfach, 8010 Zurich.

The WWF has its own database and manages its addresses itself. WWF does not sell or disclose personal information to third parties. Data may be used for internal purposes such as analysis.

Conditions of participation

Only one entry per person may be submitted. The competition will be judged on 24 October 2011. The winners will be notified directly.

Prizes

1st Prize: Invitation to an afternoon snack with the head of the WWF Hans-Peter Fricker.

2nd Prize: A guided tour with a zookeeper, visiting the tigers, the red panda and the elephants at Zurich Zoo.

3rd prize: A large animal picture from the exhibition 'WWF. A biography'.

Other prizes: WWF games, WWF skipping ropes, WWF beach ball sets, T-shirts, flip-flops ...

Personal details

First name..... Town/Postcode .....

Surname..... Telephone number .....

Age..... E-mail if you have one (or your parents' e-mail address)

Street.....

Draw a picture of an animal that you would like to protect, in its natural habitat.

